

Time Travel

19 1 1

Chapter 1 by Baconator

I bet you have heard of time travel and people trying out time travel and how they always fail. Well that is where my story begins the year is 2097 my name is James and I am 15. I am in high school and I am very intelligent I take advanced science classes. My teacher Mr. Johnson asked me to build the coolest invention I could think of. I went home after school and I thought what I was interested in and it came to me I have always been interested in traveling and space. So I thought how to combine those things together and I knew right away that I could do time travel. But I would have to create the same thing as a black hole but without all the force. But how?

Chapter 2 by Captain

I went to my room, filled with endless calculations and tubes of science experiments. This was just a ruse though. I opened the door to my closet, well I wouldn't call it a closet. It was as big as regular room and it was completely sterile. This was where I practiced my experiments. I washed my hands and grabbed a piece of paper.

Maybe beyond space there was no time. What if time was a relativity to where, not when. If I was able to get beyond space I could go to a different time and come back to Earth, yet at a different time.
